Beethoven Symphony 5- Lesson Starter

Objective: The student will be able to define mood in a story or music and tell the mood of a story or music.

Mood is the feeling or emotion one gets from an author's work (literature, music, art, dance, theater, ect)

Students will listen to Beethoven's Symphony 5 and note the mood at the beginning of the piece and how the mood changes.

Extension: Students will write a short story or poem that follows the mood of the music.

Students can also listen to modern music and note the mood and when it changes.

Students can compare the change in mood to a fiction book they have recently read.
